The remote work, part-time work, vacation at own expense, idle period – what is the best option in labour issues for a business owner during the quarantine period? How to act within the law and prevent violations that could lead to fines and litigations in the future? The situation in the country changes every day and employers have to make quick decisions regarding the further operation mode and employment relations with the employees. In our webinar, GOLAW Counsel Kateryna Tsvetkova will explain how the employer must fulfil its duty to organise the safe working conditions and to to violate labour legislation during quarantine.

In particular, we will discuss:

- Remote work: organizational issues and legal nuances
- Part-time work: how to document properly
- Idle period: consequences for an employer
- Paid leave: what to remember
- Unpaid leaves: terms and granting procedure

Speaker: Kateryna Tsvetkova, GOLAW Counsel, Attorney at law

Kateryna successfully represents her clients’ interests in complicated disputes in the courts of all instances and jurisdictions. One of main areas of her practice is labour law. In particular, the lawyer has extensive experience in advising foreign and Ukrainian companies on complex cases related to the dismissal of employees, drafting employment agreements, as well as providing comprehensive consultations on the law audits. She also assists her clients in the audits conducted by regulatory authorities.

The webinar organised jointly with the American Chamber of Commerce in Ukraine.
